Dear Maurice

We are pleased to advise that the above-identified patent application was filed in the Chinese Patent Office on April 2, 2007. We will notify you of the Chinese Serial Number when it is received in due course.

The application will be published promptly if it is found to be in conformity with the requirements of Chinese Patent Law upon preliminary examination.

If you wish to obtain protection for this invention in Hong Kong, you may file a Hong Kong patent application based on the Chinese patent application. The first stage is to request to record the application within six months from the publication date by the Chinese Patent Office. The second stage is filing a request for registration and grant within six months from the date of grant in the Chinese Patent Office. Please advise if you would like to file in Hong Kong. We will not send further reminders in this regard.

In order to keep this application in force, please note that examination must be requested by August 10, 2007. The total estimated cost for requesting examination, including our fees and disbursements as well as our associate's charges is approximately $970. We would appreciate receiving your instructions for requesting substantive examination well in advance of this due date.

Please note that if you wish to make amendments to the claims, you may do so when requesting substantive examination. Please advise of any amendments you wish to make when sending your instructions for requesting substantive examination.

If you have any questions in relation to the above or the enclosed, please contact our office.

Very truly yours,

Borden Ladner Gervais LLP
